VOL. LII., No. 3.

NEW YORK, July 17, 1897.

WHOLE No. 1329

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

FAMILIAR FEATURES OF THE ROADSIDE.

By F. SCHUYLER MATHEWS, author of "Familiar Flowers of Field and Garden," "Familiar Trees and their Leaves," etc. With 130 Illustrations by the Author. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

The country roads have a life of their own of great interest if one is properly guided, and Mr. Mathews has written his book in order to set forth the life of the trees, bushes, flowers, insects, and birds which are found along the roads. He has carried out an idea which will interest those who walk, or drive, or ride a wheel in the country, and the book will be indispensable for any one who lives in or visits the country.

SOME UNRECOGNIZED LAWS OF NATURE.

An Inquiry into the Causes of Physical Phenomena, with Special Reference to Gravitation. By IGNATIUS SINGER and LEWIS H. BERENS. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $2.50.

This is an entirely new and original work, the result of long study and independent practical experiment. It has grown out of the experience of the authors in their attempts to apply the physical method of inquiry to the elucidation of biological problems, more especially those which arise in connection with the life of man. By a close examination of the action of force on various bodies it is hoped that a new light may be thrown on the laws of Nature, including the causation of phenomena.

THE FOLLY OF PEN HARRINGTON.

By JULIAN STURGIS, author of "John Maidment," "An Accomplished Gentleman," etc. No. 221, Town and Country Library. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

The author furnishes an acute and entertaining study of a member of the fashionable world in London who attempts to preach a doctrine of absolute equality and to ameliorate social conditions. The pictures of her environment and her varied experiences and adventures furnish most interesting subject-matter.

PETER THE GREAT.

By K. WALISZEWSKI, author of "The Romance of an Empress" (Catharine II. of Russia). Uniform edition. Small 8vo, cloth, with portrait, $2.00.

The most conspicuous figure in Russia history is revived in these pages with even more than the vitality, concentrated interest, and power of graphic and intimate presentation which made M. Waliszewski's "Romance of an Empress" so distinguished a success. "Peter is the one unique man, perhaps, in the history of the human race," writes the eloquent author. "Peter is Russia—her flesh and blood, her temperament and genius, her virtues and her voice. . . . The force which has made an empire exceeding in size and population every other known sovereignty . . . is still the soul of a great people—and the soul, too, of a great man. That force is centered in him and he in it. I have tried in these pages to make it live and throb."

HAMLIN GARLAND'S NEW BOOK.

WAYSIDE COURTSHIPS.

By HAMLIN GARLAND. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

One of the most characteristic phases of life in the West is the movement of its people, particularly of its young men. The latter are always on the road to college, to the city, to places farther west. On the way a woman's face often causes the young man to pause, turn, and perhaps remain. This motive underlies the book. On her part the woman finds a peculiar fascination in the passing of the stranger and the effect upon her life. A deeper interest still is suggested in the proem and elsewhere in the book. "Wayside Courtships" will be found to be a most significant expression of the author's strong and individual talent.

Uniform with "Wayside Courtships."
New editions of Mr. Garland's other books. Each, 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A Spoil of Office. A Story of the Modern West.

A Member of the Third House. A Story of Political Warfare.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE CENTURY Co. will soon issue "An Artist's Letters from Japan," by John La Farge, with the author's illustrations. They have in preparation Mr. James Bryce's "Impressions of South Africa," an enlargement of his sample chapters in The Century; Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous;" and a child's book on Joan of Arc, illustrated in color by Boutet de Monvel and printed in Paris by Boussod, Valadon & Co. Mary Hartwell Catherwood's novel, "The Days of Jeanne d'Arc," now appearing in The Century, will also be issued in the fall.

HARPER & BROTHERS have published a volume of essays by Charles Dudley Warner entitled "The People for whom Shakespeare Wrote," in which the daily life of the people in the Elizabethan age is shown in many of its aspects; "Eye Spy—afield with nature among flowers and animate things," by the late William Hamilton Gibson, with numerous illustrations by the author; "The Story of the Rhine-gold told for Young People," by Anna Alice Chapin, illustrated; and "In Simpkinsville," a series of character sketches among the whites in the South, by Ruth McEnnery Stuart, with illustrations by Smedley, Carleton, and McNair.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready the seventh edition of the useful volume entitled "Authors and Publishers, a Manual of Suggestions for Beginners in Literature, comprising a description of publishing methods and arrangements, directions for the preparation of manuscripts for the press, explanations of the details of book manufacturing, instructions for proof-reading, specimens of typography, the text of the United States copyright law and information concerning international copyrights, together with general hints for authors," by George Haven Putnam and J. Bishop Putnam. The work has been rewritten and much new material has been added, so that the manual will be of use to the bookmaker as well as author. They have also just ready a novel by Annette Lucile Noble entitled "The Professor's Dilemma."

THE FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY have in preparation a sequel to "Courage," an interesting book for young people, by Ruth Ogden (Mrs. Charles W. Ide, of Brooklyn). The forthcoming book will be entitled "Little Homespun," and will be illustrated by Mabel Humphrey, the sister of Maud Humphrey, the well-known artist. They also announce a useful book to be entitled, "An Emergency Roll." It will consist of simple rules to be followed in case of accident, while awaiting the arrival of a physician, and will be compiled by a trained nurse of wide experience. It is to be printed on large sheets of paper, fastened together upon a roll, so that it can hang upon the wall of a country or city house, and can be referred to at a moment's notice in cases of sunstroke, hemorrhages, cuts, burns, drowning accidents, bites of dogs, etc. It is to contain numerous diagrams, which will be of assistance in many emergencies.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS, Henry Frowde, New York, is about to publish for the Egypt Exploration Fund, which has so many strong supporters in the United States, part of a papyrus book found at Behnesa, the ancient Orynxhynchus, 120 miles south of Cairo, on the edge of the Libyan desert, by Bernard P. Grenfell, of Queen's College, and A. S. Hunt, of Magdalen College, Oxford. There will be much controversy as to the antiquity of the Logia, but it is not improbable that the collection was made at the beginning of the second century, or even earlier, and the writing of the sentences may date from the second century. The sayings are detached, without context, and each begins with the words "Jesus saith." These are preserved on a page of a papyrus, 5½ inches by 3½ inches, the writing—uncials—being very clear. In addition to reproducing the leaf by collotype process, it has been decided to print a cheaper edition for a few cents so that the treasure may be brought within the reach of everyone. The Oxford University Press makes the important announcement that henceforth they will be the agents in the United States for the Clarendon Press Series.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

- Beaumont, Mary. Joan Seaton: a story of Percival Dion in the Yorkshire dales. N. Y., F: A. Stokes Co., 1897. c. 5+303 p. D. cl., $1.25. [2141]
- The first chapter introduces five children of marked characteristics, all deeply interested in a story of a crusading ancestor. The novel deals with the conflicting destinies of these children. The time is in the early fifties. "Parsifal," their Yorkshire home, still rejoiced in ancient virtues and was controlled by ancient superstitions. Joan Seaton becomes a wife and mother after many sad days. An ideal parson has great influence upon the lives of his parishioners.
- Bell, Ernest, and Carrington, Edith, eds. Animal life readers; with pictures by Harris Weir, and others. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1897. 14 v., 12°, cl., ea., net, 35 c. [2142]

- Buffalo (New York.) Manual of the Common Council; containing a sketch of Buffalo, 1897. Buffalo, N. Y., The Wenborne-Summer Co., [Mark S. Hubbell, city clerk,] 1897. 290 p. pors. il. S. pap., n. p. [2148]
- Facts and figures on various subjects; a list of members of the board of aldermen, councilmen, and common council, constituting the legislative branches of the city government, with a full and corrected statement of all appointments and salaries of municipal officers, details and duties of public departments, vote required on various measures, and full data relative to public affairs, for 1897.
- Calnek, W. A. History of the County of Annapolis; including old Port Royal and Acadia; with memoirs of its representatives in the provincial parliament, and biographical and genealogical sketches of its early English settlers and their families; ed. and completed by A. W. Savary. Toronto, Can., W: Briggs, 1897. c. 14+660 p. maps, por. il. O. cl., $3.50. [2149]
- Chapin, Anna Alice. The story of the Rhinegold (Der Ring des Nibelungen) told for young people. N. Y., Harper, 1897. c. 20+138 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [2150]
- Although written for young people the book will make interesting reading for people of any age, and is especially useful as an interpreter of the operas themselves. It is divided into parts which correspond to the operas. Miss Chapin, in an introductory part, has given a remarkably clear idea in a few words of the very complicated series of traditions from which Wagner made his operas, and the same clearness runs through the account, which is lightened frequently by the more important "music motifs."
- Cleveland Public Library, ed. Cumulative index to a selected list of periodicals: authors, subjects, titles, reviews, portraits. First annual volume, 1896. Cleveland, O., The Public Library, 1897. 4+384 p. Q. cl., subs. for year, incl. present vol., $5. [2151] volume. The list for 1897 has been still further increased to one hundred. The design of the undertaking was twofold: to furnish an index once a month that would appear as soon as possible after the periodicals themselves were published, and to make it cumulative, including in each number all material previously published arranged in one alphabetic series, thus avoiding the inconvenience of consulting a dozen indexes during the year. The dictionary catalog form was adopted, comprising author, subject, and title entry if noteworthy. — Introduction. The price of the present volume includes subscription for the year.

Colorado. Ct. of appeals. Reports of the decisions, including cases determined at the Apr. and Sept. terms, 1896; T. M. Robinson, rep. V. 8. N. Y. and Alb., Banks & Bros., 1897. c. 15+630 p. O. shp., net, $5. [2152]

Comba, T. E. Compendium of Italian pronunciation. (La pronunzia Italiana); with rules and complete lists of exceptions, tabulated alphabetically for ready reference. N. Y., Truslove & Comba, [1897.] c. 2-47 p. sq. D. cl., 75 c. [2153]

As the proper pronunciation of e, o, s, and z really offers serious difficulty the author has treated it exhaustively according to the highest recognized authorities. Where there are differences of local pronunciation the author inclines to the Tuscan sounds. He is a teacher, and knows the special difficulties which meet American students.

Connecticut. Supreme ct. of errors. Reports, June, 1896-Mar., 1897. V. 68. By Ja. P. Andrews. N. Y., Banks & Bros., 1897. c. 9+653 p. O. shp., $3.50. [2154]

Culbreth, D. M. R., M.D. A manual of materia medica and pharmacology. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., 1897. 812 p. il. 8°, cl., $4.75. [2155]

Currier, Andrew F., M.D. The menopause: a consideration of the phenomena which occur to women at the close of the child-bearing period; with incidental allusions to their relationship to menstruation, also a particular consideration of the premature (especially the artificial) menopause. N. Y., Appleton, 1897. 284 p. 12°, cl., $2. [2156]

Davies, Helen. The reveries of a spinster. N. Y. and Chic., F. Tennyson Neely, 1897. c. 2+216 p. nar. S. cl., 75 c. [2157]

The supposed repinings of a New York school teacher, who never having had time or opportunity in her lonely life for love making satisfies her cravings for sympathy by communing with an imaginary lover. Later her sphere broadens, a real lover enters her life, and she becomes a professional musician, who ruthlessly rejects love and espouses art. When surfeited with adulation and the attention of many suitors the heroine comes to the conclusion that her life on this account is a failure.

Davis, E. P., M.D. A treatise on obstetrics for students and practitioners. Phil., Lea Bros. & Co., 1897. 546 p. il. 8°, cl., $5; leath., $6. [2158]

Diderot, Denis. Rameau's nephew; a translation from Diderot's autographic text, by Sylvia Margaret Hill. N. Y., Longmans Green & Co., 1897. 21+176 p. D. cl., $1.25. [2159]

Diderot is thought to have written this satire in 1770. This is the first English version made of it from the author's autographic copy, which came accidentally to light only in 1890. Critics differ as to the subject or object of Diderot's singular farce-tragedy. It has been declared to be merely a satirical picture of contemporary manners, also a rejoinder to Palissot's comedy Les philosophes, and a discussion of the merits of the French and Italian schools of music. All these things are in the dialogue, but "they are incidents to the central figure of the sketch, the prodigy of parasites," says M. Monval.

Drummond, H. A life for a life, and other addresses; with a tribute by D. L. Moody. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1897. c. 4-75 p. nar. S. cl., 25 c. [2160]
Contents: A life for a life; Lessons from the Angelus; The ideal man.

Dumas, Alex. Dumas' masterpieces. In 3 v. V. 1, The three musketeers; il. by Maurice Leloir. V. 2, Twenty years after; with frontispiece by Leloir. V. 3, Count of Monte Cristo; with frontispiece by M. Valentin. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1897. 384; 574; 640 p. 8°, cl., ea., $1. [2161]

Du Maurier, G. The Martian: a novel; with il. by the author. N. Y., Harper, 1897. c. '96. 4+477 p. por. D. cl., $1.75; ¾ cf., $3.50; ¾ crushed levant, $4.50. [2162]

"The Martian" purports to be the life of Bartholomew Josselin, by his friend Robert Maurice. Barty, as he was called, went to school in France, then joined the Grenadier Guards in London, became an artist, and finally a writer of most wonderful books. He was helped in the latter work by a spirit from Mars, who called herself Martia, and who was exceedingly fond of him. In time Martia incarnates herself in Barty's daughter Marty, and when Marty dies, at the age of seventeen, Barty and his wife follow within two days.

Dunning, Edwin Ja. The genesis of Shakespeare's art: a study of his sonnets and poems. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1897. c. 34+336 p. O. buckram, $2. [2163]

After an attack of severe inflammation of the eyes the author became blind at the age of thirty-seven. He then began to commit to memory the masterpieces of his favorite authors, and amongst other things memorized the entire 154 Shakespearian sonnets, "A lover's complaint," and "Venus and Adonis." He began to discern a unity of thought and purpose running throughout the whole, and this hitherto hidden meaning he has endeavored to make clear to the general reader. He believes that Shakespeare unfolds a scheme of poetic development, or, of the natural evolution of the poet. The order in which to read is "Venus and Adonis," "The sonnets," and "A lover's complaint."

Eddy, Sarah J., comp. Songs of happy life: for schools, homes, and bands of mercy. Providence, R. I., Art and Nature Study Publishing Co., 1897. c. 10+190 p. sq. D. bds., 30 c. [2165]

Part I. contains poems by well-known authors, set to music, much of which is arranged from well-known composers. The songs are classified under the headings: Help and kindness to all; Animals, bees, and other insects; Birds, nature, and seasons; Liberty, love, and peace. Part II. contains dissertations on Humane education; Band of mercy entertainments; The study of nature; Music in nature; and Musical notes of birds and animals.

- Pub., 1897. 3-27 p. O. (Church papers, no. 1.) pap., net, 10 c. [2170]
- Foster, Rob. F. Foster's complete Hoyle: an encyclopædia of all the indoor games played at the present day; with suggestions for good play, a full code of laws, illustrative hands, and a brief statement of the doctrine of chances as applied to games; il. with numerous diagrams and engravings. N. Y., F. A. Stokes Co., [1897.] c. 10+625 p. D. cl., $2. [2171]
The publisher's aim has been in preparing this book to make it the highest authority for all time. Mr. Foster has consulted practically every book published bearing on games, also leading club authorities all over the world, and has had the benefit of their advice on all disputed points. Added to this Mr. Foster is an expert on almost every game; the work, therefore, is entirely original and up-to-date. It is arranged on the principle of a dictionary or encyclopædia. The dictionary of technical terms contains more than 400 words.
- Garbe, R. The philosophy of ancient India. Chic., The Open Court Pub. Co., 1897. c. 5+89 p. D. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c. [2172]
Contents: Brief outline of a history of Indian philosophy; The connexion between Greek and Indian philosophy; Hindu Monism, who were its authors, priests, or warriors? Index.
- Gardiner, S. Rawson. What Gunpowder plot was. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1897. 8+208 p. 1 il. D. cl., $1.50. [2173]
A reply to Father Gerard's "What was the Gunpowder Plot? The traditional story tested by original evidence." Contents: Historical evidence; Guy Fawkes's story; The later documentary evidence; Structural difficulties; The discovery; The government and the Catholics; The government and the priests.
- *Garrett, F. Edmund, and Edwards, E. J. The story of an African crisis; being the truth about the Jameson raid and Johannesburg revolt of 1896, told with the assistance of the leading actors in the drama. New enl. ed. N. Y., New Amsterdam Bk. Co., 1897. 31+308 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.25. [2174]
- Gibson, W. Hamilton. Eye spy: afield with nature among flowers and animate things; il. by the author. N. Y., Harper, 1897. c. 16+264 p. por. il. O. buckram, $2.50. [2175]
The title of this book gives an idea of its character, as it is, in a certain sense, a game of hide and seek with nature in country roads and bosky dells. Originally intended to interest the young in presenting facts that would appeal to them, it brings us into such close touch with nature that its readers will know no limit of age. It is a well-known fact that many of us look without seeing. Mr. Gibson teaches us the value of using our eyesight, and the several subjects treated in this volume can be studied in any part of the country; and, in fact, in some of the back-yards of city residences.
- Gillis, J. A. The Hawaiian incident: an examination of Mr. Cleveland's attitude toward the Revolution of 1893. Post., Lee & Shepard, 1897. c. 106 p. O. cl., $1.25; pap., 75 c. [2176]
The policy adopted by Mr. Cleveland toward the Sandwich Islands at the time of the dethronement of the Queen in 1893 was severely criticized. The author does not enter into the question of whether the Queen was responsible for her dethronement, neither does he make any special effort to defend or explain Mr. Cleveland's action. He thinks there has been a persistent misstatement of facts, and he wishes to offer the authentic facts of the situation as gathered from letters and statements of those taking active part in the overthrow of the throne, leaving it then to his readers to draw their own conclusions as to the conduct of the man who was President of the United States.
- Goho, Stephen O. The Pennsylvania reader: historical and patriotic. N. Y., American Book Co., [1897.] c. 207 p. il. D. cl., 50 c. [2177]

N. Y., The Self-Proving Account Book Co., 1897. c. 328 p. O. cl., $5. [2197]
- This work describes and illustrates a system of accounts adapted to various lines of business, which has for its foundation a perpetual balance sheet. It introduces no new elements, but makes various new applications of old principles. A rigid classification of accounts upon balance-sheet principles is enforced, and the columnar method of condensation and summarizing is intelligently applied. A given business is represented by the smallest possible number of accounts, and each class of accounts is furnished with books adapted to its special requirements. The authors are both practical business men; the system explained being in successful use in Mr. Brown's store.

- July, 1885, is the time of the story. The hero is a young Englishman, who was incited by a love of adventure and a desire to restore his fallen fortunes, to join the "gold rush" to Northern Australia. Remarkable incidents of bush-life are described, in nearly all of which the daughter of a squatter is the heroine, the most notable being the rescue of Norah McKenzie from the vengeance of natives, and the dramatic scene in which Dick Parker first realizes that he is blind.

- The author, who is widely known in connection with physical culture, dress reform, and other practical subjects, here deals with the intangible and inexplicable theme of the mysterious attraction or repulsion of men and women. In lengthy conversations the problems of temperament, heredity, class distinctions, physical and mental attractions, are handled, also the advisability of divorce, remarriage, etc. The book introduces three thoroughly unselfish men who live up to their unconventional convictions, and two beautiful women, who after ruining the lives of these three men, succeed in making two other men very happy.

The subject-matter is arranged in six divisions. Pt. 1, "Introductory," contains a brief statement respecting the history and principal doctrines of the Westminster standards, an exhibit of the Presbyterian principles of church government, a statement of views on subscription, and an outline of the history of the Presbyterian church in the U. S. The remaining part relates to the office of the Ruling Elder, The church session, The church and congregation, including the pastor, deacons, and trustees. Rules for judicatories and forms for sessions.

Intended for teachers beginning to teach plant life to young people. The plants selected for study are the morning-glory, jewel weed, nasturtium, geranium, and hyacinth.

Morris, W. O'Connor. Hannibal, soldier, statesman, patriot; and the crisis of the struggle between Carthage and Rome. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1897. c. 16+376 p. por. il. maps, D. (Heroes of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50; hf. mor., $1.75.

The author bases his history on Polybius and Livy. Both were inclined to take the side of Rome against Carthage. Scarcely a phrase, not a line of correspondence emanating directly from Hannibal, who towers over all the figures of his age, is available. The grandeur of his nature and achievements are found best described in Mommsen's "History of Rome," the description of the military organization of Rome and Carthage, in Colonel Dodge's Hannibal. From all these sources the author has compiled a very good addition to the fine series to which this work belongs.

- The first part of this paper contains a critical analysis of the most important features of the revenue laws of California. The second contains a study of the practical working of the law. The first part shows that the law prescribes a form of the general property tax, which conforms closely to that which is theoretically the best form of that tax. The second shows that the law is not successfully administered. The conclusion is that no general property tax can be administered under present economic conditions in the United States, so as to conform to the demands of justice in taxation.

- The story opens about 1870 with the coming to Leichardt's Town, Australia, of the new governor, who is a widower, his nephew Lord Arthur Keefe (who is also his private secretary,) and his wife, and the new Chief Justice, Outram Kenward, Q. C. The reason Mr. Kenward gives for throwing up a lucrative practice in London for life in Australia, is the climate prescribed by his physician for his weak lungs. But he loves Lady Keefe, and is loved by her in return. Nulma, from whom the story takes its name, is a beautiful Australian, who wins the admiration of the Chief Justice, and the jealousy of Lady Keefe. Her story is strongly influenced by these two people.

N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1897. 9+292 p. O. hf. leath., $1.75. [2239]
- In reshaping the material for this revised edition, attention has been given to certain phases of literary and publishing methods, which have come into existence, or which have come into increased importance, since the manual was first issued, fourteen years ago (in 1883), such as the development of authors' societies, and the use of literary agencies and "syndicates."

- Comprises the substance of several monographs that the author has published from time to time in medical journals. He has added histories of many typical cases, illustrating the results of eye-treatment alone upon various forms of nervous disturbances that had failed to yield to any other treatment. He traces to eye-strain many cases of headache, neuralgia, sleeplessness, chorea, epilepsy, nervous prostration, and insanity, and gives clinical evidence to sustain his convictions.

- This is the seventh book of the "Natural course in music," but it may be used entirely independently. It is intended to meet the wants of classes in which bass voices have begun to develop, and yet much of the music is arranged so as to be complete if the bass is omitted. Without attempting to review the elements of music, it yet presents material intended for elementary instruction. For this reason the book will serve well for normal schools, and for choral classes, in which adults receive their first musical training.

- Roth, E: American schoolboys to sixteen: a talk with parents on a course of education. Phil., [published by the author, E: Roth,] 1897. c. 2-30 p. S. pap., 10 c. [2246]
- The author lays special stress upon the fact that school is not the place for learning certain branches of knowledge, but for learning how to learn. The great principles of duty, justice, right and wrong must be taught, then every talent must be cultivated and no particular one must be allowed to overshadow the rest. After sixteen, when the intellect has been taught activity and habits of industry have been formed, a young man may follow his special bent in choice of a lucrative profession. Specially dwells upon the advantage of small classes and individual teaching.

- Speer, W: W. Elementary arithmetic. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1897. c. 20+314 p. il. D. cl., 40 c. [2253]
The author is Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Chicago. He claims children are too much assisted in all their work. From beginning to end his purpose is to bring into view the quantitative relations of things. He does not believe in teaching by formula. His lessons are all object lessons and the rules are formulated by the pupils themselves after they have thoroughly grasped the facts and the process of thought by which they have reached an understanding of them. This leaves scope for individuality of perception.

Contents: An Arkansas prophet; Weeds; The un-lived life of little Mary Ellen; The dividing-fence; The middle hall; Miss Jemima's Valentine; A slender romance. A series of character sketches among the whites of the south, told largely in dialect.
- Taber, H: M. Faith or fact? With preface by Rob. G. Ingersoll. N. Y., P: Eckler, 1897. c. 15+331 p. D. cl., $1. [2259]
A series of articles, which have appeared from time to time within the past seven years in the Free-thought Magazine of Chicago, "illustrating conflicts between credulity and vitalized thought; superstition and realism; tradition and verity; dogma and reason; bigotry and tolerance; ecclesiastical error and manifest truth; theology and rationalism; miracle and immutable law; pious ignorance and secular intelligence; pious hypocrisy and sincerity; theocracy and democracy."
- Thayer, Amos M. A synopsis of the law of contract prepared for the special use of the St. Louis law school. St. Louis, W. W. Brewer & Co., [1897.] c. 76 p. O. limp cl., $1.25. [2260]
- Tracy, L: An American Emperor: the story of the Fourth Empire of France. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1897. c. 6+424 p. il. D. cl., $1.75. [2261]
The author of "The final war" has again written a most ingenious story, showing intimate knowledge of the politics of France and the national characteristics of many lands. The American emperor is a New York millionaire. He meets a daughter of the Bourbon kings, who refuses to marry him unless he can put her on the throne of France. Untold wealth, marvellous business capacity, and knowledge of the desires of Frenchmen enable him to conquer the republic and make the French acknowledge him emperor with acclamation. Then his heart redeems his head and the end is a surprise.
- Tyler, C: Mellen, D.D. Bases of religious belief, historic and ideal: an outline of religious study. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1897. c. 10+273 p. D. cl., $1.50. [2262]
The author is professor of the history and philosophy of religion and of Christian ethics in Cornell University. He sees cheering indications of a concordat between theology and anthropology. He has given simply a résumé of the conclusions of modern thought in metaphysics, speculative ontology, and religious philosophy. He deduces from science and history that mankind has been urged along the track of progress by moral and religious ideals. These demand a Supreme Cause and End—a God and an immortal life.
- Ufford, Walter Shepard. Fresh air charity in the United States. N. Y., Bonnell, Silver & Co., [1897.] 4+114 p. O. cl., $1: pap., 50 c. [2263]
A plea for co-operation in the work of Fresh Air relief. A gathering of statistics from the 129 societies so planned as to answer the following questions: Is the money wisely spent? Are Fresh Air funds economically administered? How far will a dollar go in this work? What is its influence upon its recipient? Does the shadow which haunts every other form of charitable endeavor, also lurk here—that of pauperizing those helped? The author was recently Fellow in Sociology in Columbia University.

- Waliszewski, Kazimierz. Peter the Great: from the French by Lady Mary Loyd. N. Y., Appleton, 1897. 8+562 p. por. O. cl., $2. [2268]
The author of "The romance of an empress" has vitalized the figure of Peter the Great with the same force as that he brought to the recreation of Catherine the Second of Russia. Sparing neither his vices nor his weaknesses, he leaves him still a great man—the force that made Russia what it is to-day. The book is divided into parts devoted to "His education," "The man," and "His work." We learn of the scandals of his life—his mistresses, his excesses of all sorts, and also of his marriage, his favorites and associates, his wars and campaigns, his reforms, his diplomacy, etc.
- Warner, C: Dudley. The people for whom Shakespeare wrote. N. Y., Harper, 1897. c. 5+187 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [2269]
Essays on the daily life of the people in the Elizabethan age—depicting their costumes, the variety of dress, the style of house in which they lived, the peculiar fancies of the age, etc. The book is compiled from the old chronicles, some of them by Englishmen, many by foreigners who visited England at that time.

An analysis of value, in which the author aims to reach a scientific basis for a just money system. He claims that "after study and investigation, more or less intense, for over twenty years, he has discovered an invariable unit of value, and that the discovery is so simple yet perfect a solution of the vexing money question that the reader, when he once grasps the argument, will wonder that the savants—the political economists, professors and teachers—have, without exception, asserted the impossibility, yea, the inconceivability of an invariable unit of value."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JULY 17, 1897.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE ENGLISH PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION DEALING WITH THE DISCOUNT QUESTION.

AFTER fifty years of agitation relief seems at last to be in sight for the English bookseller, provided suffering has made him wise and taught him the necessity of faithful co-operation with those who have his best interests in mind. The representatives of upwards of sixty of the most important publishing houses of Great Britain, all members of the Publishers' Association, on July 1, met at Stationers' Hall to adopt a resolution fixing the discount of copyright books to the public at 2*d.* in the shilling, and rendering it imperative to sell net books at full prices. The penalty for violating this rule is that all dealers who refuse to come into this arrangement or who break their agreement shall be supplied at no better terms than "scrip," that is 25 per cent., and shall forfeit the benefit of odd books or discount at settlement. The effect of this will be that those who enjoy the advantages of the "sale" price and the odd books will be sure of a living profit, while those who are restricted to the "scrip" price and forfeit the odd books, will be obliged, if they wish to compete with the booksellers adhering to the compact, to sell their books at cost price or at a loss. It is to be regretted that the English book-trade did not go a step further and adopt measures to altogether abolish the discount to the public. But, perhaps, if the present rule can be successfully carried into operation, it may in time be found as possible to educate the public to understand that it must forego a discount altogether as that it must now be satisfied with 2*d.* in the shilling instead of the 3*d.* as heretofore.

The resolution was unanimously adopted by the association. The resolution will be submitted to the Authors' Society, so that it may have the sanction of all concerned in the production, making, and selling of books. No doubt some modifications will be introduced, but it is to be hoped that a combination based on rational grounds will be found to work, as it ought to work, beneficially to the three interests concerned, and fairly also to the consumer.

Mr. Frederick Macmillan, of the Macmillan Company, one of the most loyal friends of the retail bookseller, in presenting the report of the sub-committee, and moving that it be adopted, said:

"I feel that I am dealing with a momentous issue, and I am by no means unmindful of the gravity of the action which I am asking you to take. But the question with which we have to deal to-day is not only one of supreme importance to the trade—it is a question which we are bound to face, and which we cannot shirk without stultifying ourselves as an association. I need only remind you that the Publishers' Association practically owes its existence to the fact that, some two years ago, the Associated Booksellers sent out a circular expressing a wish that the publishers would meet them for the purpose of considering what steps, if any, could be taken to diminish the evils that had been brought about by the practice of underselling. A meeting of publishers was accordingly held in this hall, and, after some discussion, it was agreed that we were not ready to meet the booksellers as it was felt on all sides that the issues involved were weighty and serious, and that no steps should be taken hurriedly. At the same time it was suggested by Mr. Murray that an association of publishers should be formed so that there might be a representative body which could deal with this and many other questions affecting the interest and welfare of the trade. Your association accordingly came into existence, and although since its formation many other matters have come before it and have been dealt with, a great part of the time of your council has been devoted to the consideration of the question of 'underselling,' to which, as I say, the existence of the association is primarily due. Well, gentlemen, the first thing we had to consider was whether any action at all was necessary—whether the so-called 'underselling' had brought about a condition of things which rendered some action imperative. I think we may safely take it that a case for some action has been made out. We have had before us the evidence of numerous and important retail booksellers, who have been unanimous in saying that new books (by which, of course, I mean copyright books) cannot be purchased on the terms on which they are generally supplied by publishers and retailed profitably at a discount of 25 per cent. Some gentlemen, notably Mr. John MacLehose, of Glasgow, have gone carefully into the figures, and have drawn up and circulated statistical statements which appear to be incontrovertible. Nobody can doubt either the knowledge or the good faith of these gentlemen, and I have not come across anybody who has denied the accuracy of their calculations. According to them there is, under present circumstances, no profit from the sale of new copyright publications, and the booksellers who deal in them can only eke out a livelihood by combining with their business in new books the sale of second-hand books, of books in extra bindings, of non-copyright books which can be purchased at special terms, of stationery, or of fancy goods. This is neither a dignified nor a secure position for the commerce in copyright literature to have to assume, and although I think it very creditable to the retail booksellers of this country that they should have gone on so long doing their best for us and our wares under circumstances so disadvantageous to themselves, we cannot reasonably expect them to do so for ever. I think, therefore, that we may take it as proved that something should and must be done to improve the position of the retailer who deals in copyright books—and the next question we have to discuss is what must be done and what is the best method of doing it. It is now a good many months ago since your council received a deputation of representative retail booksellers who wished to put their views before the association. The upshot of what they said was that under present conditions the sale of copyright books was unprofitable, and that in order to improve the condition of things publishers ought to give better terms. We of course asked them at once how, if better terms were conceded, they proposed to prevent the 25 per cent. discount now allowed to the public from being increased to 30 or 35 per cent., which would leave matters just as bad as they are now. The answer to this was that they proposed that the extra terms for which they asked should be given only to such dealers as would agree not to increase the present rate of discount. To this we replied that there were great, and, as we felt, insuperable difficulties in the way of any general reduction in trade terms, as the prices of already published books were fixed, and the contracts with authors were made on the basis of the present rates with no margins for such reductions as were asked for. We observed, however, that if it was possible to get the retail trade to agree not to increase the discounts at present given, it would be equally possible to make an agreement for the reduction of discounts, and we suggested that the trade should be sounded as to the possibility of combining to decrease the present rates of discount from 25 per cent., or 3*d.* in the 1*s.*, to 16½ per cent., or in other words, to the 2*d.* in the 1*s.* which was for some years the ruling rate. The booksellers agreed that this would be possible if they received help from the publishers, and with a view of carrying the matter further they sent out a circular to 789 booksellers whom they considered to represent the best part of the trade of Great Britain and Ireland, with the result that out of this large number only 12 have explicitly declined to co-operate, 48 have omitted to answer, while the proportionately enormous number of 729 have assented to the proposal. This proposal is, briefly, that the present trade terms should be given only to booksellers who agree to allow no more than 2*d.* in the 1*s.* on ordinary books and to sell net books at full prices; and that those dealers who refuse to come into the arrangement or who break their agreement should be supplied at no better terms than scrip, without odd books or discount at settlement. Now it will be obvious to you, gentlemen, that the question whether the discount allowed to the public be 2*d.* or 3*d.* in the 1*s.* is, comparatively speaking, a detail. What is of the first importance is that the discount should be a fixed one, that no bookseller should increase it, and this end can only be obtained by the enforcement of some kind of penalty against offenders; in other words, by the adoption of a system of 'coercion.' What we have therefore to decide to-day is whether it is wise or possible to take such steps as shall make it unprofitable for any bookseller to conduct his business in a manner which seems likely to be injurious to the large majority of his fellow-traders. Frankly I may say that after giving much careful thought and consideration to the subject I am strongly of opinion that it is both wise and possible to do so. The strongest objections to the course proposed are first the disinclination we all feel, and in general very properly feel, to interfere with private liberty of action, and secondly the fear that the experiment may break down. Well, as to the first. The strong individualistic tendency which actuates most of us leads us to shrink from interfering with a man's conduct of his own business. Yet we do constantly interfere through our Parliamentary representatives with the conduct of private affairs, and it is the feeling that it is right and wise to do so that has led to the Factory Acts, Adulteration of Food Acts, and the greater part of the social legislation of recent years. If it is permissible for the majority of the nation to impose its will on the minority in such matters for the promotion and conservation of the health and well-being of the people at large, it can surely be no less permissible for the large majority of a trade such as ours to make it impossible for a few recalcitrant members to nullify a movement for the general well-being of the trade. If we are agreed that what we propose is for the general benefit of the trade and that we are morally entitled to do our best to carry it out, I do not think we need be apprehensive lest our efforts should break down. I have been told that the attempt would fail because a similar movement which was in operation some forty years ago was unsuccessful. For my part I see no reason to fear anything of the kind. I have read all the documents connected with the movement of forty years ago, and my belief is that the failure which undoubtedly occurred then was due to the faint-heartedness and want of pluck of the publishers of that day, and that if they had only stuck to their guns, as I hope we shall do, the failure would not have taken place. In addition to this I would remind you that a great deal has taken place during the last forty years, and that things are looked at now from a point of view altogether different from what was usual then. In those days Free Trade had become a veritable fetish, and it was only necessary to say that anything was contrary to the principles of Free Trade to condemn it. Of course, the particular question had then and has now no more to do with Free Trade than with the Binomial Theorem; but when dogma of that kind is in fashion anything like argument is useless, and at the period in question the mere statement that anything was contrary to the principles of Free Trade was enough to condemn it unheard. I may also remind you that at the time of which I am speaking, anything in the nature of a trade combination was regarded in the eye of the law as a conspiracy, and that trade unions, which exist for the purpose of regulating the relations between different members of the same calling and different classes of the same industry, were in those times illegal bodies. All this is changed and we have the right to reap what benefit we may from the change which has come over the views of the community with regard to such matters. Nowadays no one would venture to assert that an arrangement under which the most favorable terms were only granted to such members of the trade as were willing to subscribe to such rules as we suggest—no one, I say, would venture to assert that such an arrangement was a conspiracy or in any kind of way illegal. We must remember, however, that we publishers are not dealing entirely with our own property, that we are acting as the agents and in most instances as the partners of authors, and that it does not become us, therefore, to take an important step, such as that proposed, without their knowledge and concurrence. In this particular instance, at least, the interests of authors and publishers are identical; and I think it would be wise, nay, I consider that it is imperative, that before entering into any arrangement with the Associated Booksellers as to this important question, we should approach the Society of Authors, should explain to them what it is that we and the booksellers propose, and should get them to agree with us in saying that the suggested action is taken in the interest of all connected with the commercial side of literature—of the authors who write books, of the publishers who bring them out, and of the booksellers who sell them to the public. I do not anticipate that there will be any difficulty in putting the matter before the Society of Authors in such a way as to induce them to coincide with our views and those of the booksellers, and to co-operate with us in carrying them out.

Taking it for granted, therefore, that no difficulty is raised by the Society of Authors, I think that if this movement—which is not in any sense illegal or opposed to the sentiment of the age, and which is approved of by more than 90 per cent. of the booksellers of the kingdom—is honestly and fearlessly carried out, it cannot well fail to be successful; and this being so, I unhesitatingly assert that it is our duty to join with the booksellers in putting it into practice. For, remember, the only alternative is to do nothing, and to do nothing is to ask the booksellers to continue the distribution of our publications on terms which they believe and which we believe to be unprofitable. This must of necessity mean that in the long run booksellers will cease to interest themselves in the sale of new books, and will put all their energies into the commerce in second-hand books, stationery, fancy goods, or any other articles out of which they can get a decent living. Such a result cannot be otherwise than disastrous to the publishers and to the authors for whom they publish. I sincerely hope, therefore, that you will not be led by weak-kneed and timid counsels to abandon without a trial this serious and promising attempt to put the commerce in new and copyright books on a stable and satisfactory basis. I beg to move 'That the principle and scheme proposed by the sub-committee be approved by this meeting, and that the Council be requested to communicate with the Incorporated Society of Authors, with a view to securing their co-operation.'

THE SALE OF THE ASHBURNHAM LIBRARY.

SINCE the days of Heber, Roxburgh, and Sunderland no book sale perhaps has attracted such universal attention as that of the Ashburnham library, part of which was recently sold in London from June 25 to July 3. The portion disposed of comprised about one-fourth of the entire collection. As the catalogue proceeds alphabetically, and only reached the letter F, and as it contains no fewer than 1683 entries, some idea can be formed of the enormous industry and zeal of the late Earl of Ashburnham, to whom alone belongs the credit of founding and completing it. As the collection of Ashburnham manuscripts, which the same Earl made, is even more famous than his library of books, it should be borne in mind that the recent sale consisted entirely of printed matter. A glance at the catalogue will show that the late Earl was not only one of the most successful, but also one of the most fortunate of collectors.

His life was contemporaneous with the first three-quarters of the present century, and, as he developed a taste for book-buying in early manhood, the searching for rare and unique copies was the work of his lifetime. On the other hand, his desire to possess manuscripts came to him late in his career, and belongs only to the twenty-five years preceding his death. In his search for printed books, his absorbing aim was to obtain specimens of the rarest editions which came upon the market, and of these the very finest obtainable copies. This sometimes led him to buy many copies of the same book in his eager search for the most perfect one, as it also led him to purchase copies of different editions sent out by various early and famous printers. Since many of the first printers and binders were artists in their own domain, Lord Ashburnham could not fail to collect some of the most sumptuous examples of their art. But he did not collect books because of their external beauty, and though the collection, as every collection of rare and early books must be, is rich in volumes of the most superb exterior, he formed his collection mainly on the basis, which must guide every true book-hunter, of the contents, condition, rarity, or historic interest of the book itself.

The most remarkable portion of the section of the library was the great collection of Bibles, and of books relating to the Bible. Of the 1683 lots in the section, no fewer than 228 were of these classes. The Bibles and Testaments were in various languages, and where several copies of the same edition appeared, it generally arose from the fact that some special personal or family interest was attached to them. Specimens of the earliest foreign presses, all belonging to the middle of the fifteenth century, were among these lots. The oldest among the collection of Biblical books was the "Biblia Pauperum," an original block book, in folio form, of extraordinary rarity, and bearing the date of 1430. It was impressed on forty leaves on one side only, every leaf neatly inlaid, bound in blue morocco, with Etruscan borders, and having line frames and silk linings. This copy was regarded by Heineken as the second edition of the block book, and is necessarily a work of much value. It was the Paris copy, afterwards Willett's, at whose sale it realized £257, and subsequently sold in the Hamott sale for £36 15s. At the Ashburnham sale it fetched £1050, Mr. Quaritch being the purchaser. Coming shortly after the block book in date was a copy of the Bible printed on vellum by Gutenberg and Fust in 1450-'55. This was the Perkins copy and was bought by the late Earl for £3400. It fetched at this sale £4000. The bidding for it was not particularly brisk. It commenced at £500; the next bid was £1000, and Mr. Quaritch made it £2000. From that to the final amount the bids came timorously. The London Academy thinks that no doubt it would have brought more had there been a certainty about the two leaves which were presumed to be in fac-simile. The auctioneer informed the company that all the four copies of this famous work sold in these rooms had gone to Mr. Quaritch's bids; this, however, was the first copy on vellum. Mr. Quaritch was the heaviest buyer at this sale, and he succeeded in capturing the rarest treasures. For full reports of the sale our readers are referred to the London Academy for July 3, and to the Saturday Review of Books and Art of the New York Times for July 10.

The rest of the collection is to be placed on the market at a later date. Some idea of what is to come may be formed when we state that there is a Pliny of 1472, printed on vellum; a unique set of the first five editions of Walton's "Angler," "in the finest condition, and in the original sheep binding"; a number of very rare works on Witchcraft and kindred subjects, published in the time of Elizabeth and James I.; and several important works relating to the discovery and early history of America.

TO INVITE BUYERS TO NEW YORK.

THE MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION, which recently secured concessions from the Trunk Line Association and the General Traffic Managers in the shape of a reduction in fare to the out-of-town buyers who want to come to New York to make their annual or semi-annual purchases, has sent out a letter to the business men of New York City asking for an increased membership. They call attention to the fact that the railroads made the concession in the fare simply as an experiment, and that in order to have the experiment continued it will be necessary to prove its success from the start.

The association proposes to send personal invitations to 125,000 merchants and buyers throughout the country to come to New York and bring their families with them when they make their purchases this year. With this letter the association sends out a circular directed to "merchants in all lines throughout the country." The circular tells of the concession by the railroad companies, which is one and one-third fare for a round trip, and asks all merchants to become non-resident members in order to avail themselves of the reduction. There are no dues, fees, or liabilities attached to non-resident membership. The circular contains this advice to out-of-town merchants:

"Keep your home trade by visiting, twice a year or oftener, the largest and broadest market in the world. All the most successful merchants do this. Your certificate of membership in their association will be to all who see it evidence of your connection with the market which is the fountain head of goods and ideas for this continent."

The resident membership in the association costs $25 a year, and the association hopes to have the names of all wholesale dealers in New York City who seek out-of-town trade on its list. The Advisory Committee of the association is to be composed of representatives of every trade represented in the association.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN MUSIC UPHOLD IN CANADA.

THE International Copyright Law was upheld in Toronto on the 6th inst., by the High Court of Ontario in an important case, and the interests of United States music publishers in Canada will, in future, be protected. Judgment was given by Justice Robertson in the action brought by the John Church Company, of Cincinnati, against J. Gould, of the Imperial Music Company, Toronto.

The action was brought for the infringement of a copyright on two of Sousa's marches, "King Cotton" and "El Capitan." The judgment restrains the Toronto firm perpetually from publishing these pieces of music, and orders that all copies of the pieces in the hands of the concern be given up, as well as the lithographing material used by the defendants in printing the music. The defendants must pay the costs.

FORFEITURE OF THE ENGLISH EDITION OF AN AMERICAN COPYRIGHT BOOK, IMPORTED BY BLAKISTON, SON & CO.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT ATTORNEY BECK on the 10th inst., in the United States District Court at Philadelphia, filed an information for the forfeiture of fifty-seven copies of Morris's "Text-Book of Anatomy." The books were seized by the Collector of the Port of Philadelphia for alleged violation of the copyright laws, which prohibit the importation of foreign editions of books copyrighted in the United States. As the books were imported by the owners of the American copyright, it is urged under the act of March 3, 1891, that they should be forfeited, as they were not printed from plates set from type within the limits of the United States. It was stated that the books were imported in April last by P. Blakiston, Son & Co., the owners of the United States copyright, and that they were imported from England because the American edition had been exhausted, while the English edition remained unsold. Blakiston, Son & Co. will appeal and endeavor to obtain a decision from the highest court as to their rights in the matter.

E. B. MYERS & CO. vs. THE CITY OF CHICAGO in re "THE REVISED ORDINANCES."

THE City of Chicago has filed in the Circuit Court of the United States its answer to the bill of E. B. Myers & Co. for an injunction to restrain the infringement of a copyright. The so-called "Revised Ordinances" of 1890 and 1894, printed by E. B. Myers & Co., have never been adopted as a whole by the City Council, according to Assistant Corporation Counsel Hill, and therefore are not the originals, and great inconvenience has been experienced for years in consequence. To remedy it the city government, during Mayor Swift's administration, projected a new "Revised Ordinances," and had them printed by W. B. Conkey & Co. The matter will make two large volumes, the first of which has been delivered and is ready for distribution among the aldermen and other city officials. But on June 20 Judge Grosscup granted a restraining order, which in the United States courts precedes a temporary injunction, prohibiting any further distribution or publication of the work until the motion for a temporary injunction is argued and decided. The ground of the restraining order is that the new book is an infringement on the copyright of the "Revised Ordinances" of 1890 and 1894. E. B. Myers's complaint is that the new book has printed two-thirds of the paragraph side-heads of his book, and that the compilers used his book in compiling ordinances themselves. Mr. Myers examined only 2100 out of the 5000 paragraphs in the whole work, but he finds that 1400 of them are copied verbatim from his book. That they were copied bodily he claims to be able to prove in two ways.

SUIT OF CASTOR vs. SCHOENHOF TO DETERMINE TERM OF CONTRACT IN COPYRIGHTS.

JUDGE MORTON, on June 30, in the Suffolk Supreme Court, Boston, Mass., heard the bill in equity brought by Theodore H. Castor, against Carl Schoenhof to compel him to specifically perform a contract, made in 1893, giving Mr. Castor the sole agency for his French and German books, some of which are alleged to have been copyrighted. Mr. Castor claimed Schoenhof sold to the American Book Company in May last, in alleged violation of his contract with him, his copyrights, plates, etc., for these books, the agency and the right to publish which, it is alleged, his contract of agency with the plaintiff covers. There was no express stipulation in the contract as to the length of time which the contract should last. Mr. Castor claims it extends, at least, for the period of life of the copyrights; while Mr. Schoenhof contends, on the other hand, that it extended only so long as he himself published the books. The court reserved its decision.

OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. ORSON S. ST. JOHN, author of a work on "The Origin of Life and Celestial Mechanics," died in New York on the 7th inst. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., in 1810.

JOHN R. REYNOLDS, for thirty years publisher of the Odd Fellows' Talisman, and one of the best known Odd Fellows in the United States, died at his home in Indianapolis, on the 7th inst. He was seventy years old.

DANIEL GREENLEAF THOMPSON, author of "A System of Psychology," "The Philosophy of Fiction in Literature," "The Scientific Method in Social Reform," etc., died in New York on the 10th inst. He was born in Montpelier, Vt., February 9, 1850. He was a lineal descendant of Sir Benjamin Thompson, the physicist, better known perhaps as Count Rumford.

MRS. HARRIET GRISWOLD MORTON, widow of the late John P. Morton, died in Louisville, Ky., on the 13th inst., aged eighty-one years. She was the daughter of Alexander Viets Griswold, from 1811 to 1843 Bishop of the Eastern diocese of the Episcopal Church, then comprising Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island. She was married to Mr. Morton September 20, 1836. Her life was largely devoted to works of charity, in which she always had the earnest co-operation of her husband, who during his life gave upwards of $100,000 to the Church Home and Infirmary in Louisville, and by his will left a large sum to the same charity.

JOHN CHALMERS BLAIR, founder and president of The J. C. Blair Company, of Huntingdon, Pa., died in Philadelphia, June 23. Mr. Blair was the son of Captain Brice X. Blair, and was born at Shade Gap, Pa., in November, 1847. He entered business as a clerk in the First National Bank of Huntingdon, and later, in 1868, he bought the book-store of Simpson, Armitage & Co., in the same place. He devoted his energies to the business, adding printing and stationery departments thereto, until in 1885 the business had grown to such an extent that he began the erection of a large stationery manufacturing establishment, which is now owned by the J. C. Blair Manufacturing Company. Mr. Blair was elected chief burgess of Huntingdon two terms. He was also a director in the First National Bank, where he began his business career.

CHRISTOPHER PRESWICK, the founder of the present firm of Morse, Baker & Hall, of Elmira, N. Y., died in that city June 25. He was born in Ithaca, N. Y., August 18, 1820. As a boy he was apprenticed to Mack, Andrews & Woodruff, booksellers. In 1846 he removed to Elmira, where with A. Z. Sickles he opened a book and stationery store. Mr. Sickles died in 1851 and Mr. Preswick continued the business alone until 1861, when James T. Dudley, now of Leavenworth, Kan., became his partner, and the firm name was changed to Preswick & Dudley. In 1871 Mr. Dudley retired from the firm, his place being taken by Rosius Morse and Robert Hall, and the firm name became Preswick, Morse & Co. In 1886 Mr. Preswick retired from the book business to devote his time to the Old and New Mexico Cattle Company, of which up to the time of his death he was secretary and treasurer, and to the Elmira Silver Mining Company, of which he was also secretary.

REV. AUGUSTINE F. HEWITT, D. D., Superior of the Community of the Paulist Fathers, died at his apartments in the monastery in Fiftyninth Street west of Columbus Avenue, New York, on the 3d inst. Nathaniel Augustus Hewitt was born of staunch Presbyterian stock in Fairfield, Conn., seventy-seven years ago. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1839, and two years after he received his preacher's license in the Congregational church. In 1843 he renounced his Calvinistic belief and was ordained a deacon of the Episcopal church. In 1845 he renounced Protestantism and went to Charleston, S. C., to prepare himself for his reception into the Church of Rome. In 1847 he was ordained a priest. After nearly twenty years of parish and missionary work he devoted his entire time to study and writing, and he became one of the chief authorities on church history, theology, and philosophy in this country. He was also an accomplished linguist. The best known of his writings are the memoirs of his friend, Father Baker, "Reasons for Submitting to the Catholic Faith,"

"Life of Princess Borghese," "Life of Dumoulin-Borie," and his edition of the complete works of Bishop English. He was also a frequent contributor to the Catholic World and the American Catholic Quarterly Review.

HENRI MEILHAC, the French dramatic author and member of the Academy, died in Paris on the 6th inst. M. Meilhac was born in Paris in 1832. At the age of twenty he began to contribute with pen and pencil to the Journal Pour Rire; and in 1855 saw his first dramatic efforts, "Santania" and "Garde Toi, Je Me Garde," produced at the Palais Royal, but without much success. Five years later he collaborated with M. Ludovic Halévy in "L'Étincelle" and "Une Heure Avant l'Ouverture." Both were presented at the Vaudeville, while a year later he collaborated with M. Arthur Delavigne in "La Vertu de Célémène," which was produced at the Gymnase. In spite of its improbable plot the piece became popular, and M. Meilhac was successfully launched as a dramatic author. With MM. Halévy and Delavigne he subsequently co-operated in producing a large number of plays, from "La Belle Hélène," which was brought out in 1870, to "La Roussotte," produced in 1881. Under the pseudonym of Ivan Baskoff he contributed several articles to La Vie Parisienne, and he wrote for the Revue de Paris "Les Pafens," a comedy in verse. The play which is perhaps the best specimen of his art as a playwright is "Décoré," which was written without collaboration and produced in 1888. His "Margot," accepted by the Comédie Française in 1890, and "Brevet Supérieur," produced in 1892, were almost equally successful. In 1869 he received the decoration of the Legion of Honor; in 1884 he was promoted to be an officer of the Legion. He was elected to the Academy in 1888 in succession to Labiche.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MONCURE D. CONWAY has severed his connection with the South-Place Society and will for the future reside in New York City.

MISS LOUISE IMOGENE GUINEY, the authoress, has resigned her place as postmistress at Auburndale. She left the office on the 6th inst., which she has filled for three and a half years. Miss Guiney has found time to do considerable literary work during her leisure moments. She says she left the office because consolidation with the Newton office brought about a reduction of salary, and she did not care to give her time for the lessened income.

The Critic in its issue for January 10 reprints Copyright Notice No. 30452 C² from THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY (page 24), in which John S. P. Alcott renews the copyright of Miss Louise M. Alcott's "Hospital Sketches," and in doing so The Critic wonders whether Miss Alcott was ever married, etc. For the information of our contemporary we recall the well-known fact that Miss Alcott not long before her death adopted as a son her nephew, John S. Alcott Pratt—one of "Jo's" boys. Mr. Pratt on that occasion changed his name to John S. Pratt Alcott. As an adopted son he inherited all the rights of a son, and the copyrights of his adopted mother besides.

PROF. ARTHUR S. HARDY, author of "Passe Rose" and "But Yet a Woman," has been appointed Minister Resident and Consul General to Persia. Prof. Hardy is well known here and abroad as a mathematician, engineer, author of technical works, novelist, and poet. He was born in Andover, Mass., in 1847, and received his education at Phillips, Amherst, West Point and in foreign universities. In 1871 he was elected to a Professorship at Iowa College, leaving there to become Professor of Mathematics at Dartmouth in 1874, which place he held until 1895, when he resigned to devote himself to literary pursuits. His treatises on mathematics are used in Cambridge and Oxford and in several American colleges. He was for a time associated with John Brisben Walker in the editorial management of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

THE French physician, Dr. Toulouse, who not long ago explained Zola's literary power as the result of a peculiar combination of liver and skin, has covered the whole ground in a lecture on "The Nervous System of Artists," lately published in Paris. Recognizing the fact that a creative imagination is usually dependent on nervous excitement, Dr. Toulouse warns artists and writers against the idea that they can produce this excitement artificially. "If you have not by nature the requisite nervous endowment, you cannot make up for it by a free use of alcohol, coffee, absinthe, morphine, chloral, or antipyrine." An author resorting to any of these stimulants, when imagination flags, is in great danger, affirms Dr. Toulouse, of "producing effects quite contrary to those he seeks." The dose which is exciting in the case of the writer becomes only soporific in the case of the reader.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Mexican Department of Colonization and Industry has compiled a list of the newspapers of Mexico. This statement shows that the total number of newspapers in the republic is 366. Of this number 92 are published in the City of Mexico. Thirty-five are published daily, 169 weekly, and the remainder are monthly and semi-monthly.

THE London Athenaeum in its issue for July 3, publishes a series of articles on the literature of the Continent for the twelve months ending in June. Belgium is treated by Prof. Fredericq, Bohemia by Prof. Tille, Denmark by Dr. A. Ipsen, France by M. J. Reinach, Germany by Hofrath Zimmermann, Greece by Prof. Lambros, Holland by M. Crommelin, Hungary by M. L. Katscher, Italy by Comendatore Giacosa, Poland by Dr. Belcikowski, Russia by M. L. A. Bogdanovitch, and Spain by Don Rafael Altamira.

BESIDES the remarkable American railway story by Rudyard Kipling to be published in the Fiction Number of their magazine, the Scribners—whose subscription edition of the Kipling books, by the way, is now nearly completed—will have a very interesting representation of Mr. Kipling's work within the coming year. In the Christmas Number of the present year they will publish a particularly notable poem, that is said to rival in freshness and vigor the famous "McAndrew's Hymn"; and later on another short story of Mr. Kipling's will appear in their magazine.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ADAMS, MASS.—Ralph Getman has bought the book and stationery department of the Roberts Jewelry Store.

BETHLEHEM, PA.—C. L. Barron is to retire from the firm of Swartz & Barron, booksellers. Robert Young, a son-in-law of Mr. Swartz, will take his place in the firm.

BOONSVILLE, MO.—W. J. McCarthy, bookseller and stationer, has assigned his stock to his mother.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The estate of the late A. S. Barnes, the publisher, was sold on Tuesday, in partition proceedings, and was bought in by Henry B. Barnes, one of the heirs. The Clinton Avenue homestead brought $34,000, and the six-story building on Nassau and Liberty Streets, New York, $79,000.

LANCASTER, O.—A. Brenneman, bookseller, has assigned to attorney A. B. Kiefaber, whose bond has been fixed at $12,000. The deed conveys all personal property, moneys, credits, and the entire stock of books, etc., and the homestead on West Wheeling Street.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN.—Julius Abeles has succeeded to the business of the Library Book Co.

MARION, O.—W. J. Winant, who for a number of years has been with his brother C. G. Winant, bookseller, at 127 W. Center Street, has gone to Colorado for the summer to recruit his health. His brother, C. G. Winant, joined him on the 5th inst. for a brief vacation.

OSCEOLA, IA.—E. J. Wilson (Mrs. E. H. Wilson), bookseller, has been succeeded by Edward & Richards.

RICHMOND, VA.—We regret to note that the J. W. Randolph Company, formerly Randolph & English, one of the old publishing and book-selling firms in Virginia, has gone into the hands of a receiver. This was a friendly proceeding instituted by Major Norman V. Randolph, president of the company, who claimed in his bill that the concern was indebted to him in sums aggregating $1460, and that he is endorser for the company for a much larger sum. The First National Bank of Virginia, which holds paper of the company amounting to $12,985, filed a petition in the suit asking that its interests be protected. The bill of Mr. Randolph sets forth that the J. W. Randolph Company is indebted to him as above stated, and that it is unable to meet its obligations as they mature, and asked that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the assets of the company, and that a commissioner of the court ascertain the rights of the creditors, etc. There was a meeting of the board of directors of the company on the 8th inst., at which a resolution was adopted instructing the president and secretary to file answer to the bill of N. V. Randolph in the Law and Equity Court. This answer was filed admitting what is claimed in the bill, and Judge Minor appointed Colonel J. V. Bidgood, the vice-president of the company, as receiver, and also granted an injunction enjoining and restraining all parties from interfering with the assets of the company. The decree of Judge Minor directs the receiver, as soon as he shall have given bond in the sum of $8000, to take charge of the property of the company, and to manage the same to the best interests of all concerned. He is to take an inventory at once, and dispose of the assets at public or private sale, as he may deem best, within eight months. The receiver is authorized to collect all accounts, bills receivable, etc., due the company, and to employ all necessary agents and employees. The officers of the J. W. Randolph Company are: N. V. Randolph, president; J. V. Bidgood, vice-president; R. Tucker, secretary and treasurer; and these, with W. J. Quigley, J. J. English, Jr., and L. L. Cheatwood, constitute the board of directors.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The John L. Boland Book and Stationery Company is now domiciled in its fine seven-story building on Fourth Street. The building fronts three streets, taking up almost the entire block from Third to Fourth Streets. Its dimensions are 75 feet front by 180 deep. The latest patterns of movable shelving and fixtures in oak constitute the furniture on the first floor. In the rear of the salesroom are the private offices of the president, treasurer, and secretary of the company. These are tastefully fitted up with the latest improved fixtures and furniture. The building is equipped with three elevators, two for freight and one for passengers, and it is as near fireproof as a building can be made; besides the fire escapes it is supplied with appliances for extinguishing flames in case of an emergency. On the first floor are arranged books, and the second floor is devoted to the exhibition of samples. The third, fourth, fifth, and sixth floors are filled with stationery, school books, school supplies, sporting goods, and notions. The seventh floor is used for the packing and shipping departments. We congratulate the firm upon the event. For thirty years the house has moved steadily forward and its success is as well deserved as it has been well earned.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

HENRY F. CLARK, 427 Arch Street, Philadelphia, who has recently purchased the business and good will of the mail-order department of the Ladies' Home Journal for the sale of books, has also acquired the copyright and plates of the Journal's catalogue, "5000 Books," of which he will publish a revised edition in the fall.

THE BOSTON ATHENÆUM will publish shortly "A Catalogue of the Washington Collection in the Boston Athenæum," compiled and annotated by Appleton P. C. Griffin. The catalogue will be in four parts—(1) books from the library of George Washington; (2) other books from Mount Vernon; (3) the writings of Washington; and (4) Washingtoniana. To this material has been added an appendix containing an inventory of Washington's books drawn up by the appraisers of his estate, with notes in regard to the full titles of the several books, and the later history and present ownership of those not in the Athenæum collection, by W. C. Lane, librarian of the Boston Athenæum. The edition will be 700 copies, of which 50 copies will be on a specially wove paper bought in 1850 for this purpose by the committee of the subscribers who gave the collection.

THE OFFICE INTERNATIONAL DE BIBLIOGRAPHIE, 1 Rue du Musée, Brussels, has published in its series of Bibliographia Universalis, a "Bibliographia Astronomica," prepared by the Société Belge d'Astronomie under the direction of P. Marchal, F. Pauwels, E. Lagrange, E. Goedseels, P. Stroobant, J. Vincent, and G. Balat. The Bibliographia Universalis is a co-operative undertaking composed of a collection of special bibliographies, edited by different persons under the general direction of the central office. The various parts are published separately, but on uniform lines. They are classed under the decimal system, and are printed in pamphlet form on one side of the page only, and on cards for catalogue use. The Office International de Bibliographie was formally established in September, 1895, by the Belgian government as the result of action taken at the first bibliographical conference held under its auspices a short time previously. The second conference, as has already been noted by us, will be held in Brussels August 2 to 4 next. The Bibliographia Universalis now comprises, besides the part mentioned above the following publications: "Bibliographica Philosophica," issued by the Louvain Institut de Philosophie in 1895; "Bibliographica Sociologica," by the Bureau Sociologique, of Brussels, in 1895; "Bibliographica Zoologica," edited by Messrs. H. H. Field and V. Carus, and published by the Concilium Bibliographicum of Zurich since 1896; "Bibliographica Medica Italica," by F. Rossi Doria, 1896; "Bibliographica Anatomica," by Messrs. Field and M. E. Roth, issued by the Concilium Bibliographicum of Zurich since 1897; "Bibliographica Physiologica," by C. Richet and others, issued by the Concilium Bibliographicum, 1897; "Bibliographica Ostretica e Ginecologica Italiana," by T. Rossi Doria, published by the Societa di Ostetricia of Rome, 1897; and "Bibliographica Americana," being the printed card catalogue of current books issued by the Publishing Section of the A. L. A., which the office includes as the American contribution to its scheme of world bibliography. There are in preparation a "Bibliographia Bibliographica," or summary of bibliographical works and periodicals; a "Bibliographia Geologica," and a "Bibliographie de l'histoire de Belgique." The office also publishes a Bulletin de l'Institut International de Bibliographie, of which six numbers are issued yearly, and a number of pamphlets and monographs explaining the decimal system, giving the decimal classification of various sciences, etc.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Samuel Austen, 62 Seneca St., Utica, N. Y., Americana, comprising local histories, Revolution, Rebellion, genealogies, trials, biography. (No. 52, 1090 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE CONTINENTAL PUBLISHING COMPANY have in press "Through the Invisible," a mystic tale, by Paul Tyner.

T. Y. CROWELL & CO. announce for publication an English translation by Isabel F. Hapgood of the Polish novel by Mme. Marguerite Poradowska, entitled "Demoiselle Micia."

THE Tariff Bill was passed by the Senate at 4:55 p.m., on the 7th inst., by a vote of 38 to 28. The completed measure went back to the House and passed to a Committee of Conference.

GEORGE ALLEN, London, has in press "The Free Library: its History and Present Condition," by J. J. Ogle, the librarian of the Bootle Free Library. The volume is edited by Dr. Richard Garnett.

THE VIRGINIA BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION will hold its seventh annual convention at Virginia Beach, August 4 and 5. A cordial invitation is extended to booksellers throughout the country to meet with the association.

BLACKWOOD & SONS will publish in the fall the first two volumes of the annals of the historic publishing house of Blackwood, work on which was completed by the late Mrs. Oliphant a few weeks before her death.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL CO., of Indianapolis, will publish Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton's new volume of recollections, "Eighty Years and More." They have also in press Miss Susan B. Anthony's reminiscences, speeches, etc.

THE PACIFIC PRESS PUBLISHING COMPANY are preparing for publication a life of Christ, by Mrs. E. G. White, which will be called "The Desire of Nations," and will be illustrated. They have in preparation another book by the same author on "The Parables." "The Gospel Story Simply Told," by Elder William Covert, fully illustrated, will be ready soon.

W. A. WILDE & CO. will shortly publish two interesting books for young people—"Washington's Young Aids," by Dr. E. T. Tomlinson, and "Sue Orcutt," by Charlotte M. Vaile. Dr. Tomlinson's story deals with the Revolutionary campaign in New Jersey, while Mrs. Vaile continues with the fortunes of one of the sisters who was first introduced in the "Orcutt Girls."

MARK TWAIN's forthcoming book, which will be published during the holidays by the American Publishing Co., of Hartford, Conn., is to be entitled, "The Surviving Innocent Abroad." "It is true," the author says, "that other members of the party who left America in the Quaker City some twenty-eight years ago are still living, but the hero is the only one who has remained innocent."

P. BLAKISTON, SON & CO. have in press a "Manual of Diseases of Infancy and Childhood," for students and practitioners, by Drs. John Madison Taylor and William H. Wells, both of the Philadelphia Polyclinic; a work on "Diseases of the Stomach," by Dr. John C. Hemmeter, of the Baltimore Medical College; and the first volume of "A Treatise on Surgical Anatomy," by Dr. John B. Deaver, of the University of Pennsylvania.

THE NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK COMPANY have published, by arrangement with Hurst & Blackett, a work entitled "Women Novelists of Queen Victoria's Reign," by Mrs. Oliphant, Mrs. Lynn Linton, Mrs. Alexander, Charlotte M. Yonge, Edna Lyall, and others. They will publish at once a revised and enlarged edition of "Lady Hamilton and Lord Nelson, an historical biography based on letters and other documents in the Morrison collection," by John Cordy Jeaffreson, author of "The Real Lord Byron," etc.

GEORGE H. RICHMOND & Co. will publish shortly a translation of Stendhal's [Henry Beyle] story, "Rouge et Noir," under the title of "Red and Black." It will be issued uniform in style with the same firm's edition of "Stendhal's 'Chartreuse de Parme,'" in three volumes, illustrated with numerous etchings. They will also issue shortly a new edition of James L. Ford's unique little book, "The Literary Shop." This new edition, which, by the way, is the fifth, will contain numerous additions, written in similar vein to the rest of the book, and flavored with a similar spice.

STONE & KIMBALL announce that on the few remaining copies of the English Classic Series, the price will be raised to $2 a volume, or $20 for the set of eleven volumes. Edwin Emerson, Jr., compiler of the "College Year-Book and Athletic Record," is now at work on the edition for 1898. There will be many corrections. The "Record" has been revised and brought down to date and some new colleges have been added. The book will be published by Stone & Kimball in early September, which will make it available for those who desire an impartial and official record and general information concerning all the colleges in the country while sending their sons to preparatory schools.

HENRY HOLT & Co. announce for immediate publication: "Chrestomathie Française," a French Reader, with phonetic transcriptions, and an introduction on the "Phonetic Method," by Prof. A. Rambeau, of Johns Hopkins, and Prof. Jean Passy, of Paris; also, seven of Sainte-Beuve's "Causeries du Lundi," including the famous "Qu'est-ce qu'un classique," in one volume, with introduction and foot-notes by Prof. Geo. M. Harper, of Princeton. They will issue at the same time new editions, with vocabularies, of Goethe's "Hermann und Dorothea," edited by Prof. Calvin Thomas, of Columbia, and of Riehl's "Der Fluch der Schönheit," edited by the late Prof. F. L. Kendall, of Williams.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish late in the fall the biography of Tennyson, by his son. The statement recently made that Harper & Brothers had secured the American rights was incorrect. The Macmillans also announce a valuable handbook under the title "An Outline for the Study of City Government," by Delos H. Wilcox, Ph D., of Columbia College. The author holds that the city problem is the key to the immediate future of social progress in this country. He discusses in turn problems of function, of control, and of organization, and his book will be useful, not only to students in colleges and secondary schools, but even more to any class of citizens who are interested in the betterment of municipal conditions through the development of intelligence and the sense of civic responsibility.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

BOOKS WANTED.

For terms of advertising see issue for June 12, p. 975.

In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.
